Editor's Notes

August is a favorite month for runners, hikers and the Hash House Harriers in most parts of Europe, North America, and in several regions around Asia. Our fair weather friends in Australia, New Zealand, Antarctica and Siberia may be spending some time huddled up next to the fireplace in the warm winter environs of their favorite pubs. Wherever you are, cuddle up with your favorite refreshment and enjoy the namesake of Caesar Augustus.

Our cover boy this month is dressed to impress at the Cocktown H3's 1700th Run, in quaint but curious Queensland. Just how many actual queens reside in Queensland is a frequently debated topic in this proud city.

USA: August will see Michigan Interhash and the Motown-Ann Arbor 30th Anniversary Celebration, just a short drive on the interstate from Motor City, USA. Imagine yourself cruisin' down the highway singing along with Motown's litany of all-time top tunes.

If you find yourself on the other side of the USA, we highly recommend that you motor over to the Bisbee Red Dress Run, hosted by the Huachuca H3 above the badlands of Arizona. This town was the largest city between San Francisco and Saint Louis in the glorious days when copper was king. If you make it to Bisbee, be sure to show up for a Post Lube the following day in Tombstone AZ, for a few cold drafts, and maybe even a gunfight at the OK Corral. At the end of the month you could always head to USA Nash Hash, hosted by the Omaha H3 in Weeping Water, Nebraska.

CANADA: Go north to ON-ONtario Interhash in Midland, Ontario, where the Royal Canadian Mounties will welcome you with open arms.

EUROPE: Interscandi in Arhus is slated as the best Danish event of the summer. If "Something is rotten in the state of Denmark" it must be a long way from Arhus where the air is sweet as a soft summer breeze across a field of blooming wild flowers.

EUROHASH: Many dedicated hashers traveled from near and far to Eurohash in Vienna, the jewel of the Danube. Read CIA's undercover report on what really happened there. What could go wrong? What could go right? Read all about it and discover the naked truth. While the truth sometimes stings, we can learn from such experiences.

USA: What was so special about the big Mount Vernon H3 Anniversary Run? Quick Drawers was there to find out and tell all. Parental Guidance is advised.

CARIBBEAN HASH CRUISIN': Hazukashii leaves beautiful Hawaii to check out the Hash scene in Curacao, St. Maarten, Aruba, and points beyond. As he discovers, among other things, that Curacao is more than a drink.

AFRICA: The illustrious Head Mistress reveals what you always wanted to know but were afraid to ask about "Hashing on the Kenya Coast".

INTERHASH FIJI: The Nadi Hash House Harriers join the local Bula Queens for the Bula Festival. Check out the latest updates on the event venue, hotels and trails.

BREW NEWS: The Micro Brew Revolution is hitting the Philippines like a tropical typhoon. Journey to Palawan Island, and drop in for a tasting tour of Palaweno Brewery.

Eurohash 2017 REVIEW

by CIA

CONTENTS

Eurohash 2017 in Vienna is now in the books. A lot of planning went into this event by the organizers. So how did it go? Some things went well, some did not. I think it's safe to say that reaction from participants was mixed but before going into specifics, I think a lot of hashers judged this event based on their experiences from the last two Eurohashes, which in my opinion were both outstanding events. So Vienna had a lot to live up to. Also, I believe this Eurohash had the largest attendance ever which brings its own unique challenges.

Let's begin by looking at communications. I thought this aspect went very well. A website was set up that contained plenty of information. Periodic newsletters were sent out to those who successfully registered and these were distributed in a timely fashion. Info about runs, hotels, venue location, prelubes, postlubes, etc. was all there. The only irritant was the need to login with a password to access some of the information.. I haven't seen that before and that was a bit of a hassle but it's a minor point.. So kudos to the committee for communications.

In terms of registering for the event, lots of people experienced problems and delays including myself , mostly with payment. It's still not clear to me why PayPal couldn't be used. Just build the transactions fees into the registration costs. It was stated that if PayPal was used, then the payments to the committee would be withheld by PayPal until after the event was completed. Fair point if true, but lots of hash events use PayPal and I haven't heard of this issue before. Another payment option is hashspace. Was that explored by the committee? Many hash events have used this option and the process goes very smoothly. Something else besides wire transfers, etc. needs to be examined for future events.

As for onsite registration to pick up goody bag, etc., that went smoothly for me, but I arrived early on Tuesday. There was confusion on Thursday before red dress run about where to register for RDR and where to register for Eurohash.. some information stated only RDR registration could be done at the hash hotel but that wasn't entirely true. I know some folks picked up both RDR and Eurohash stuff at the hotel but it wasn't true for others. Also I know of a few people who were told their goody bag had been picked up by someone else in their hash club when in fact the bag had been misplaced. Also, nobody checked my ID to confirm I was the person actually registered.. I don't know if that started getting enforced later in the week, but you have to do this at these big events if you don't personally know them.

As for the goody bag itself, it contained the basics and that was it. There was a tshirt , a red dress tshirt if registered for RDR, a patch, a drinking vessel with no handle, and a drawstring bag. The shirts and the patch were okay but my drinking vessel never got used. I had a plastic mug I picked up at a Prague H3 run and I'm glad I purchased it. As for the drawstring bag, it was total crap. I think it broke within a half hour of use. This was true for many other hashers too.

I did like the venue that was chosen. It was a very big room in a multipurpose building that could handle the large crowd. On the far side opposite the entrance, was the stage. On the right side was the catering. It was one very long table and folks queued at either end for meals. With only two queues, this resulted in very long lines considering the number of people in attendance. Why do organizers keep doing this? Is it the cost? Someone remarked they could have set up another catering table on the left side of the room, opposite the table they had set up on the right side of the room. This would have allowed four queues for food. Yep, I'm sure it would have cost more for extra staff but it would have been a better experience for all. That being said, I thought the food was quite good once we got to it. And there was plenty of beer. They did have several beer stations set up, so no long queues for the golden nectar. They also had wine for the winos.

I liked the stage and the audio setup. No problem hearing people up there. They also had a big projection screen. Another thing done well was the band they organized for Friday night. This was an all female band (from Czech Republic I believe?) called the apples. They were excellent and played the right songs to get hashers engaged. This was one of the best bands I have ever witnessed at a hash event. (They have some YouTube clips out there if you are curious about them, including a few from Eurohash).

For those who wanted a more quiet spot to converse or just get away from the music, there was a smaller room set up for this. Also, you could just go outside and a lot of people did that too (especially the smokers). There was also another room set aside for hash bazaar, etc. which seemed to work out okay.

The venue was about a 20 minute walk from the hash hotel, but they had buses running back and forth between the hotel and the venue, which was a nice touch. Alternatively, you could hop a surface tram a couple blocks away and take that to the metro, so I thought the location of the venue was excellent.

One aspect of the venue that wasn't good was bus staging which gets us to our next topic: runs and bus staging.

There was a lot of planning that went into the runs. Many visiting clubs helped with this and there were lots of different run lengths to choose from. However, all the runs seemed to be about twice as long as advertised.. lots of runs were advertised as 4 to 5k but the actual distances were around 10k or more. I noticed this wasn't limited to Vienna but seemed to apply to most of the prelube and postlube runs organized in Central Europe. I've come to the conclusion that Eastern Europe uses a different measurement for length which I'll call the "eek", the Eastern European kilometer. This metric is about twice as long as a regular kilometer, so 4 eeks equals about 8k. Once you realize everything is being measured in eeks, it all makes sense..

Other than the long run lengths, most hashers seemed satisfied with the runs themselves. I was on run number 2 which was the bra and panties run. We had a unique problem on our run as the hares failed to account for a bridge which was too low for the bus to pass under. Woops!

As a result, we had to make a lengthy detour and we were still a few miles short of the start. As a result, the hares had to scramble and lay trail from the bus to the section of the trail closest to the bus. As a result, the walkers trail got significantly shorter and actually was 4K!

I've always maintained that I've never been on a run that couldn't be improved by cutting it in half!

The main issue with the runs was not the runs themselves but the bus staging. Boarding buses for runs at big hash events has often been a clusterfuck and Vienna was no exception. Part of the problem was the fact there was no large open area for the buses to congregate. They were forced to line up on narrow city streets. Some streets did have signs indicating no parking on Saturday morning. This was to allow access for the buses. But these signs were ignored by the locals living in the area which created more havoc. A further confusing factor was the fact that the buses weren't lined up in sequential order so people were going to and fro searching for their buses. The ballbuster people had an especially difficult time finding their bus. I personally didn't witness much of this mayhem as our bus was one of the first to depart, but I heard it was bad. In hindsight, a different site should have been chosen for bus staging. A large open area would have been best. There is no rule that says the venue has to be the same location where the buses depart. In fact, they often have been two different sites.

One other comment about the runs is that there were no buses going to the run sites on Sunday. Usually at these big events, buses are scheduled both days so that people can choose another run (often one where the bus was already filled). That was not the case in Vienna. Sunday's run was a walk/run from the hash hotel to the venue. It didn't matter to me but some folks commented that they felt shortchanged...

So to conclude, Eurohash in Vienna was a mixed bag. Some things went well, other things did not. I give the committee an A for effort but execution was flawed in some aspects. That being said, I recognize that you can't plan for everything and that some of these items I mentioned may be due to budget constraints. Organizing one of these events is a thankless job and it's not one that I would want to do. I suspect a lot of sleepless nights occurred and I certainly appreciate the effort that Vienna put forth in making this event come together. There were some unique aspects to this event like the third man day that I really enjoyed, (although that wasn't officially part of Eurohash). In fact, I have often found that the best part of these mega hash events is not the event itself but the prelubes and postlubes that encase it.

I also want to commend the committee on the selection of the hash hotel. Hotel Zeitgeist was good value for money and the staff was very accommodating towards the hash. When I next visit Vienna, this is where I will stay.

The next Eurohash will be held in Scotland and will involve a boat trip to the Shetland islands. I wish the organizers good luck, especially with the weather!

PALAWENO BREWERY

by Malu and Ayah
Some Photos by Mr. Al Linsangan

PALAWENO BREWERY:

- First and Only Craft Brewery in Palawan.
- First Female Craft Beer Brewers of the Philippines.

Palaweño Brewery was founded in 2012 by Barbara A. Javier, fondly called by friends and relatives as Ayah, from whence “Ayahay Craft Beers”, the brand of craft beer line, was named. “Ayahay” is a native slang that means “chill” or “relaxed”. Aptly so, Palaweño Brewery’s line of craft ales and lagers set the unperturbed pace in any occasion.

Background Palaweño Brewery is Ayah’s brainchild. Ayah (the founder) lived in San Diego for more than four years when the craft beer craze hit her area. Back then, she was oblivious of this thing they call “craft beer” until a friend introduced her to it. She became an instant convert.

In 2012, she came home to the Philippines with a brilliant idea and a homebrewer’s kit. She thought, “this would definitely be a welcome change for the Philippines”. Ayah and her partner, Malu, started with the homebrewer’s kit and started brewing in their little kitchen. They would throw “Ayahay Night” parties for friends as a means of introducing craft beers as well as their way of checking if their brews would be at par with the local taste.

From the homebrewer’s kit, Palaweño Brewery was born. To date, they brew all-grain but still keep things traditional: filling bottles by hand, crafting and labelling bottles themselves.

The Strengths

Palaweño Brewery is the FIRST and ONLY Craft Beer brewery in Palawan. Aside from that, Ayah Javier and Malu Lauengco are the FIRST FEMALE CRAFT BEER BREWERS in the Philippines. Palaweño Brewery is one of the first five craft beer microbreweries that started in the Philippines and have garnered numerous citations, awards and features, locally and international. This year, they are upscaling and increasing the production to seven times bigger than their initial production. We surely will see more of this first female run craft brewery in the Philippines! Ayahay!

Hash Cruisin' Caribbean Style

By Ed "Hazukashii" Howell

Some of my friends called me crazy, flying from Hawaii down to the Caribbean just to hash, leaving one paradise for another. Once they saw the photos though, it was a different story . . . and here is the story.

We numbered about 35 hashers, most flew in from various islands in the Caribbean, but a few from further afield. We boarded the Royal Caribbean ship "Adventure of the Seas" in San Juan, Puerto Rico for a luxurious seven days of bliss. For those that arrived early, a Friday evening hash was organized in old San Juan, just to get this going. The cruise was organized by China Brush, of the Moons Over Barbados H3, and she did a wonderful job organizing the rabble of hashers. Goodie bags had two shirts, a water bottle, and various other nifty items. The first night aboard we had our first social up on the highest levels of the boat, for a meet and greet, and introduction of the hares for the week. After many drinks, and dancing, we settled in for the ride.

Our first port call was at Philipsburg, St. Maarten, nicknamed The Friendly Island. Situated about 300 kilometers east of Puerto Rico, the 87 sq/km island has a French influence to the north, and a Dutch influence to the south, dating back to 1648. Our hares “Sow Love” and “Checkmate” set the first trail from “Sharky’s – Bar with a Bite” where the beers are cold and the rum is plentiful. The hares provided an excellent trail to get our hashing adventure started, and it did not take long for us all to feel like old friends.

Our next day was at sea, so we entertained ourselves with swimming, hot tubs, and extensive use of the pool bar. All the tropical drinks you can stand, for about US $12 each (ouch).

Over the next three days, we made port calls in the ABC islands of Aruba, Bonaire, and Curaçao, (but we visited them in the appropriate order as the BAC islands (blood alcohol content), which are all located less than 150 kilometers north of Venezuela (South America). First we pulled into port at Kratendijk, Bonaire, which is a popular destination for SCUBA divers. The Bonaire Flamingo H3 hosted this trail and was hared by resident GM “Madam Flasher.” The trail was marked all in flour, and gave us an excellent tour of the small port village. The circle was on the shore, where the anticipated pink flabongo provided cool refreshing beer to many a hasher. After a quick clean up, “Madam Flasher” who also escorted us on a tour around this beautiful island in the afternoon. We visited the salt flats, where mountains of salt could be seen from miles away, as it was farmed from the salty ocean via an intricate process of evaporation. We also visited the Cadushy Distillery, where we sampled cactus liqueur that was infused with several different flavors from citrus, to orange, and red, blue, green, and even pink I think.

Next, we were off to our next port call at Oranjestad, Aruba. After a few attempts to contact the local Aruba H3, we decided to set our own trail hared by “Tiny Whiney Bitch” and “Hazukashii.” Heading off the boat early to validate the map recon, we managed to figure out a good 6-7 Km trail to entertain the pack. As we returned to the port, a lone hasher turned up, stating he was Elgin, the GM of the Aruba H3 and he had already set a trail. Well, anyone who knows me would understand my disappointment, but all was well. Once the pack had gathered, Elgin welcomed us all, and stated that he had basically hared all the trails for the Aruba H3 for the past 35 years. Wow, that is some dedication. He went on to explain that the trail was marked with small pink flags on 6 inch sticks, and that we would run along the coastline until we reached a blue flag, and then turn around and run back the same way. Hmmm, seems a bit hinky, but off we went. I recall seeing 5 pink flags over the next 2 miles actually missed the blue flag, and had to be called back to the turnaround point.

Although we very much appreciated the efforts of Elgin to set the trail for us, as the pack gathered at the turnaround point, we shared our desire for something a little different for the second half of the trail (fortunately I was still carrying the 8 sticks of chalk I planned to use to set trail). With about a 5 minute head start, I took off into the unknown to set a return trail through the city. Dashing from grassy spot to dirty lot, we managed to find enough shiggy to get our hearts racing, and ready for some cool libations. We had a rousing circle at “The Paddock” within sight of the ship. Our host, old Elgin, tried to sneak away, but we pulled him back just in time. In the end, Elgin said it was the best time he had ever had on an Aruba hash, and I was extremely honored to be one of only two hares on the Aruba H3 over the past 35 years. ;o)

Our final port of call was in Willemstad, Curaçao, yet another amazingly beautiful island with many adventures to be explored. Hares for this adventure were “Baron Tongus”, “Doubles” and “Tiny Whiney Bitch.” The trail was an excellent thrill ride through the old city, ending along the waterside of one of the largest deep water ports in the world. After a relaxing circle, we scampered back to the ship to clean up, and off we went on another island tour took us to many interesting sights, and included one of the finest Curaçao Distilleries. You may have heard of Blue Curaçao, but it actually comes in about a dozen different flavors.

Saying farewell to Curaçao, our last day was at sea, where it was all you could stand hot tubbing, sun bathing, and relaxation. A final goodbye party that evening closed the events as we returned to port in San Juan again and went off for new adventures. What an amazing time, and I really appreciated meeting all the Caribbean hashers, looking forward to seeing them all again. OK, since I mentioned it . . . Caribbean Cruise 2019 is already in the works, see it all on the website at <http://hashcruise2018.simplesite.com>

Note: I have only skimmed the surface of the amazing history of these four islands, if interested, you can find plenty more on the internet.

Mount Vernon H3

1600th

Mount Vernon H3 celebrated its 1600th hash on Saturday, July 8th 2017, at the normal 10AM start time. The start location was nearby George Washington's Mount Vernon Estate and trails ended in Fort Hunt Park along the Potomac River, just south of Washington D.C.

MVH3's slogan "If you don't start in the morning, you can't drink all day" is the reason that the day and start time rarely changes during the year. Today's turn-out of 60+ regular hashers each received a commemorative white Tank-top hash shirt, which they then proceeded to Thai-dye in various colors and designs, of their personal choosing. Hares for this hash were: Parent's Weekend, Rosary Bleeds, Hunt for Head October and Whales' Vagina.

The 90-degree bright sunny weather had most members seeking shady spots to hold their usual pre-hash conversations. As the pack completed the traditional opening circle and their abbreviated exercises, they were advised to look for Beer checks on both Runner and Walker trails. Runners were also advised not to bring any technology with them as they would encounter a water crossing on their respective trail, which required some swimming! Being a walker and planning to take a few photos on this day, seemed to have its advantages for me!

The majority of both trails fortunately had plenty of welcome shade, as they wound their way throughout the Fort Hunt Park area. The well-marked trail, with its checks, false trails and warm humid weather combined to do a good job of keeping the pack within sight of each other, even though spaced out a bit. A welcomed Beer Check was located near one of Fort Hunt's old gun Battery's and its juice and water refreshed the pack for the remainder of trail.

Arrival at trails end and ON IN to one of Fort Hunt's picnic areas greeted the pack with ample normal cold refreshments, various types of Subway sandwiches, ever present Oreo cookies, chips, pretzels, etc.

All-in-all today's hash was a very pleasant typical hash and a fine day to celebrate the 1600th of my home hash - Mount Vernon H3. Visiting and first-time hashers are always encouraged to attend and none will leave a MVH3 hash either thirsty or hungry.

Hashing on the Kenyan Coast

by Julie Burgess

The Kenyan coastline is home to many fine beaches with the most famous being Mombasa and Diani Beach which both have small thriving hash groups with active members travelling to regional hash events so Head Mistress was well aware of their existence so jumped at the chance of visiting when the Abyssinia Howling Hyena Hash House Harriers (Addis Ababa's Monday Hash Chapter) organised a trip to Mombasa led by Index, an Ethiopian but former resident of Mombasa.

27 Howling Hyena hashers travelled to Mombasa from Addis Ababa via Nairobi for a long weekend by the beach. The two hashes in the area take it in turns to hold a hash on Saturday afternoons with the hope that they will visit each other to make up numbers.

Perfectly timed by Index who knows about the beauty of Diani Beach, it was the turn of Diani Beach Hash House Harriers to host the hash that weekend so we all piled on the bus around midday to make the trip to Diani Beach on the South Coast taking us through the heavily clogged streets of central Mombasa to wait in the long queue for the passenger and vehicle ferry which connects the North coast to the South coast, home to Diani Beach. Fortunately, since we were in a tourist bus we managed to jump the queue.

CONTENTS

It took awhile to get back on the bus since it got stuck trying to get off the ferry and had to be towed off for a price. That didn't worry the Hashers as we sung a few hash songs to the entertainment of the locals.

The Diani Beach Hash starts around 5pm but when we arrived, there were only a few members around but they gradually trickled in but there was no sign of the VIPs, the two GMs. Finally it was decided to start without them as the hares much to the delight of the Ethiopian hashers had laid a 10km trail and wanted to complete it in daylight. (Most of the Monday hashers are more into the drinking side of hashing rather than the running/walking). The trail was mainly down quiet sandy paths straying out to the main road for a beer stop and then back again.

End result the trail was cut short to give more time on the fabulous Diani Beach, kilometres of hard white sand perfect for running on but photos became the focus of the visiting hashers, some who had never been to the coast before so it was only when darkness fell, that the On in was reached. A circle followed notable for its hash dice which decided on what kind of punishment those charged would receive. For some reason to the delight of the circle it seemed to keep landing on stiff arm, (hasher has to put a piece of drain pipe on their arm for the down down) or being redirected so many stiff arms followed.

The party then carried well into the night with the visiting hashers being taken to a few local night spots before the journey back to Mombasa in the early hours of the morning.

Hash Chapters on the Kenyan Coast

Diani Beach H3, originally called South Coast Hash House Harriers held its first inaugural run on 8th September 2012. It was started by Jugs formally from a Laos kennel and runs twice a month. It is now celebrating 50 runs. Runs are late Saturday afternoon. <https://www.facebook.com/groups/670287406426247/>

The current Mombasa Hash House Harriers is a revival of the long defunct chapter started in 1983. Restarted on 14th February 2015 by two hashers from Nairobi who moved to Mombasa, the group meets every two weeks on Saturday around Mombasa and the North coast. <https://www.facebook.com/groups/640939442698786/>

Hash Chapters in Nairobi

Nairobi Hash House Harriers meets up every Monday around 5.30pm usually in a bar/restaurant around the outskirts of Nairobi. <https://www.facebook.com/nairobi.hashhouseharriers>

Original Nairobi Hash House Harriers meets every Monday and occasionally on weekends. Registration starts at 5pm and the run starts at 5.45pm. <https://onh3.wordpress.com/>

KOREA

- A REFRESHING HASHING EXPERIENCE

Hanyang Hash House Harriers & Harriettes (H5) of Korea is proud to offer itself as host of Pan Asia Hash 2017. The fact that there has never been any large scale hashing event in Korea means that, for most of the prospective participants, this Pan Asia will be a very refreshing hashing experience indeed.

We specifically chose Sokcho City as the event venue: on the fringe of this city is the world-renowned Seorak Mountain National Park which, for many Korean soap opera aficionados, has often been the surreal backdrop. The proposed dates are similarly selected, for late October ushers in the most spectacular autumnal colours, best highlighted by the rainbow hues of the maples.

Participants will get to savour the K-food phenomenon that has been taking the gastronomic world literally by storm. Be enamored by the extensive spread of Korean delights - the quintessential Ginseng Chicken Soup; the omnipresent mouth-watering beef, lamb, and pork barbecues; the huge varieties of fresh – and often live - seafood eaten either raw/sashimi-style, or prepared in dozens of off-secret recipes unbeknownst to other parts of the world. All these, and more, washed down with world famous brands of beers, or with the uniquely Korean soju and makgoeli.

The time is ripe for a refreshing change of scenery, of style, of food and beverage, and of a completely new hashing experience. We are a new troupe of organizers, backed by the provincial government, and supported by experience from the Motherland of hashing.

Give your affirmation for a refreshing change!

KOREA - THE VENUE OF CHOICE

- ACCESSIBLE – round trip as low as USD200-250 from most SE Asian cities

Run for children:

Luang Prabang Half Marathon

REGISTRATION

CONTENTS

Registration is now open for the 5th annual Run for Children: Luang Prabang Half Marathon on October 22nd, Sunday. This unique, charity-focused race features a scenic loop course which participants can enter as a 7km, 14km, or 21km (half marathon) distance through the town's historic UNESCO heritage area, passing golden temples while winding along the Mekong river. This year organizers will also be hosting several weekend activities including a charity pool party, Lao culinary journey, a photo exhibition and an outdoor concert.

The Luang Prabang Half Marathon was ranked by CNN as Asia's Top 5 Destination Races and we've also been featured in Vientiane Times newspaper, South China Morning Post as well as the international edition of Hash House Harriers magazine. With increased international flight access to Luang Prabang, the organizers expect to host 1,500 runners. Registration is available through www.luangprabanghalfmarathon.com

Run for Children: Luang Prabang Half Marathon is organized by Lao Friends Hospital for Children (LFHC), which provides free healthcare to the children of Laos. LFHC is a full functioning pediatric hospital supported by Friends Without A Border. LFHC opened in 2015 and since then has treated over 30,000 children. With a newly opened Operating Theater and Neonatal Unit, the medical capacity has expanded drastically this past year. All funds from this race will help support LFHC to continue providing compassionate healthcare for Lao children. In 2016 the race raised over $53,000 for the hospital through registrations and crowd-funding donations.

Tigerhead Water has already confirmed to be the "Presenting Sponsor" for the race, with additional major sponsors such as Air Asia, Bangkok Airways, Lao Airlines and Booking.com. The organizers have also received tremendous support from local hotels and restaurants, making this one the largest community events in Luang Prabang.

Race information and regular updates can be found by liking the Facebook page, listed below. Entry fee will be refunded for runners that raise over USD $250 for the hospital through the Crowdrise site.

MAN WHO PROVIDED BAGS OF PISS FOR TOP CYCLISTS NOMINATED FOR SPORTS PERSONALITY OF THE YEAR

Chopper Raleigh said, "It's always nice to be recognised. Not everyone knows the sort of effort it all takes. I have to follow the peloton all over France keeping my fluids up. It's quite stressful having to pee on demand then find a way to pass it to the riders without anyone seeing. Recognition like this makes it all worth while."

One high profile team spokesman Rob King said, "We're thrilled for Chopper. It's takes a lot of effort to make sure a rider gets the bag with the urine in it at the end of each stage. There's so much can go wrong like it not being the right temperature when they give it the jugs. One year a sample went totally wrong. We'd cut costs and got some generic urine from the internet. It looked totally legit and is the same company the Russian Olympic team recommends."

The scientists got the sample, ran some tests and the results came back with a positive result for pregnancy. The scientific technology moves on so fast. I remember the days working in the nineties. We used to be able to use horse urine. One of the domestiques would cycle up behind a police horse and get the sample in a bottle then pass it the team leader at the end of the race. Now with the testing they can tell if it's human so it's got a lot more complex. Not everyone was happy about the nomination though.

One anonymous BBC insider said, "This makes a mockery of sports personality of the year. I've not seen anything like this since 2006 when Scotland voted for Sven Goran Eriksson to receive the award." Chopper now intends to take some time away from cycling being allowed to pee when he wants.

Brexit shock: EU demands Britain takes Belgium, gives up Suffolk

Brexit negotiations took an unexpected turn today when the EU demanded that Britain hands over Suffolk to Europe in a swap deal for Belgium.

But Theresa May and her Brexit team insist the last thing Britain wants is Belgium and they certainly have no intention of handing over Suffolk, its jewel on the east coast.

EU diplomats know just how shit Belgium is because Brussels is where the European Parliament is based.

In a clever tactic, they reasoned they could get shot of the flat, featureless country because the UK Government is desperate to leave the EU on the cheap.

EU president Jean-Claude Juncker said: "I come from Luxembourg and it's annoying having Belgium next door. It's bad enough being sandwiched between Germany and France. "Belgium should go to Britain and we'll have Suffolk and its fine Adnams beer instead."

David Davis, who is leading Britain's Brexit discussions, refused to even think about the Belgium offer.

"It's a non starter. The country is good for chocolate but only famous for inventing the Tintin comic character. Belgium is now more tinpot than Tintin."

The Belgium-Suffolk swap deal impasse may now hold up the entire Brexit process, sending worldwide markets into a downward spiral from which they may never recover.

Belgium is so boring that even its own population is unimpressed.

Jeremy Clarkson once did a documentary on the country, and wandered the streets asking the locals whether they were glad to be born Belgian.

He was surprised when after interviewing many people, he found just one guy who was happy being Belgian. Even a man dressed as a penguin for no apparent reason said he preferred his status as a penguin to that of being Belgian.

Residents of Suffolk, on the other hand, adore their county, and have only one complaint – that it is next door to Norfolk. Resident Alan Tasker said: "We do not want to be moved to the EU. We'd much rather stay where we are as East Anglia's leading county."

BREXIT NEARLY HAPPENED IN 1886

Brexit covers the newspapers these days like a tramp's vomit, but it isn't the first time Britain has considered leaving a large international organisation - it nearly happened in 1886. While the British Empire was approaching its peak, there was a small movement for Britain to leave it. Coincidentally, it was led by my great-uncle, named Sir Geoffroy Cockface.

Sir Geoffroy was trouserer to Prince Albert, who had sadly passed away years before. Nevertheless Queen Victoria insisted that his body be stuffed and mounted inside Buckingham Palace, and his trousers needed changing daily to avoid the terrible stench of his decaying corpse. It was Sir Geoffroy's job to keep the trousers looking and smelling fresh.

During a casual conversation in the palace, Sir Geoffroy commented to Lord Winklebottom that Britain was in danger of being weighed down by the responsibilities of having such a large empire. He suggested that it would be better if Britain were to "take back control" of its own land, and perhaps even try to form an empire closer to home, for example, by invading Belgium.

He calculated that Britain spent £350 a week funding its empire, money which could be spent on top hats and coal instead. However, it was pointed out to Sir Geoffroy that Britain made most of its money by exploiting its subjects throughout the globe, and losing the Empire would cost at least £800 a week.

The movement reached its peak in 1887 with a "Grand Brexit Ball" held in Kensington. Sir Geoffroy made a speech in which he said, "Antipodeans, Indians, Pygmies and other fuzzy-wuzzies all take our money and force us to rule over them. It's about time we ended this madness." He then unveiled a painting showing New Zealanders leaving Britain on a ship, with the caption "They used to be British, now they're just dirty foreigners".

Soon after, Sir Geoffroy lost his job when he was caught fondling the Prince's corpse. He claimed he was re-measuring the inside leg, because the decaying body was constantly changing size.

Nevertheless he was sentenced to death for treason, and his idea for an early Brexit died with him.

Sir Geoffroy was hanged in 1888. Owing to the severity of his crimes, he was hanged upside-down. He dangled by his feet for nearly four days before he died of starvation.

Prince Philip Insulting Foreigners After Being Released From Hospital

HRH Prince Philip Was Straight Back To Work Today Insulting Foreigners Just Three Days After Being Released From Hospital-

Palace officials were quick to point out that the hospitalisation was purely precautionary as the result of an infection brought about by a pre-existing medical condition, and were very quick to deny that the pre-existing medical condition was that of being dead.

"The nurse was foreign" a suspiciously skeletal and malodorous yet regal and statesmanlike Duke told reporters." "I asked her, what exotic part of the world do you come from? Birmingham, she replied. So I asked her; do you still chuck spears at each other? You look like you're on drugs. Where's my bloody dinner, woman?"

London Zoo reportedly cancelled a scheduled appearance by national treasure Prince Philip (108) on Friday; head zookeeper Reg Herpes informed us 'we have a lot of monkeys here, it was just asking for trouble racist gaffe-wise to be honest, it'd be like shooting fish in a barrel. We only accepted the booking in the first place because we'd heard he'd gone into hospital, we didn't seriously expect him to come out'.

The Duke is also rumoured to have engaged the disreputable firm of solicitors, Food Ambulance Chasers For You, to pursue a compensation claim against Royal Ascot. This is apparently in relation to his recent illness, although we await confirmation.

Our legal sources say it will be alleged that Royal Ascot served dodgy burgers to the Duke of Windsor while he was at the races. And several young ladies who tan too well to be British failed to curtsy.

The Duke is rumoured to be seeking damages in the millions of pounds and a formal apology written in Greek.

A spokeswoman for Royal Ascot, Ms Pulchella Equus, vigorously denied the claim,

"We will defend this charge in the courts should the claim be brought.

We only serve swan to the Duke, with a pint of 'Fernando de Castilla Antique Palo Cortad' sherry.

As the Duke personally kills each swan while pointing to his wife and giggling like a school boy, we really don't see how. Prince Philip's next official appointment, visiting a Chinese takeaway in Neasden to accuse them all of having slitty eyes, is due to take place on Thursday shortly after his state funeral.

Police find $10 million cash in Nigerian widow's spare room

Nigerian police who found $10 million cash in a widow's spare bedroom said she had been trying to give it away for years.

Mary Abacha, 42, claimed she had been offering the money to Brits since 2011, but "none of the buggers" had replied to her emails.

She told stunned cops her late husband had amassed the fortune while working as a lawyer in the country's capital, Abuja,

"It was all perfectly legal, but I just wanted to put it in a bank in Britain where it would be safe. I emailed lots of people I found on the internet who I thought could be trusted to take the money and deposit it.

"As a reward for their kindness, they would get $1 million to keep.

"But imagine my surprise when none of the buggers even bothered to reply. I mean, who wouldn't want a free million?" Police say Mrs Abacha, whose husband died in an unfortunate car accident, had done nothing wrong, and they had now persuaded her to deposit the $10 million into a local finance establishment instead.

Inspector Adeleye Iyabo told Reuters news agency: "There must be many thousands of people in the UK kicking themselves right now. If they had only replied to Mrs Abacha's email, they would be wealthy beyond their wildest dreams. "I would advise anyone receiving such a kind offer to take it up. What have you got to lose?"

Builder Henry Dodds, 37, who was one of many to receive one of Mrs Abacha's emails, was devastated when we told him how he had missed out. "It just looked a little odd when I received the email," he said. "Serves me right for being so untrustworthy."

10TH JAZZ IN JUNE

JAZZ, BBQ and balcony limbo in June The last Underground run of June saw Hashers back at Sir MaliBog's for a little running, drinking and jazzing. The run turned out to be short and sweet, so the write-up reflects that.

The trail began in typical MaliBog fashion as we quickly left the confines of North Stockholm's concrete jungle, to find the green and leafy oasis of campus Karolinska in the most roundabout and inaccessible way. Hashers could be see clamoring over hand railings, squeezing between fences and crawling under apartment balconies.

Just as the runner's descended from the heights of campus Karolinska, they were joined by the walker's and there was much rejoicing.

The meeting was brief though, as the runners headed back up the hill and the walkers did an about face to retrace their tracks. Keeping consistent in its meanderings, the trail led Hashers on a quest to pass through every green space in Karolinska.

This could explain why upon returning to the streets of Stockholm, the tight knit pack of arrow followers splintered into anarchy, abandoning their search for a trail and descending upon the drink stop from all directions All were rewarded though, with drink and midsummer's finest delicacy...

PICKLED HERRING.

A short stroll from the drink stop brought the group back to the On In and a quick circle.

The evenings activities then turned to Jazz and grilling, neither of which will be reviewed in this short article. OnOn, Hugh Hefner

Welcome To Australia

Australian Head Of State Forced To Resign After British Citizenship Revealed

The most senior figure in the Australian governmental system, forced to stand aside after it was found she holds a British passport. It comes following Greens' senator Scott Ludlam's resignation when he was discovered to have dual New Zealand citizenship.

Like Ludlam, Australia's head of state was found to have foreign citizenship. Although, embarrassingly, she apparently does not hold Australian citizenship either. It is unclear how the error went unnoticed for so long – the position has been occupied for over 50 years. She will be allowed to run for the position again as soon as she renounces her British citizenship and takes up Australian citizenship.

Mooning experts brought in to prepare for Donald Trump visit in 2018

Following the announcement that Donald Trump will visit Australia in 2018, it has been revealed that mooning experts have been contacted to help prepare the public. The professional mooners will make sure that the huge numbers of people who want to point their bare backsides at the President can do so in the most efficient way possible. In terms of mooning logistics, it will be challenging," said Bruce Williams, one of the country's leading experts on exposing posteriors.

The visit of Donald Trump is expected to be the largest ever Antipodian mooning event since the famous 1903 'Arse-off' between Australia and New Zealand, where over six hundred thousand people mooned each other over the course of three days.

We don't know how long Mr Trump will be in the country, but we expect that somewhere between 500,000 and a 1,000,000 people will want to use that period to expose their buttocks in his general direction.

It's going to be difficult. Off the top of my head, we will be looking at around the clock mooning taking place 24-7 during his visit. If all goes well, wherever he looks, there should always be several hundred naked arses in the President's eye line. The quality and quantity of the mooning will be vital in a showpiece demonstration of what will be considered one of Australia's last remaining world-leading talents – getting one's bottom out.

Sensational 200-Year-Study Finds Migrants Failing To Assimilate in Australia

Migrants to Australia have displayed an inability to assimilate with local values and refuse to speak anything but their native tongue, a study covering the last 200 years has found.

The study confirms a popularly-held belief in parts of the country that migrants simply refuse to fit in.

Boat people from as far back as 1788 didn't bother applying for passports or visas, were bent on introducing their own laws, and, in many cases concealed criminal records, according to the damning report.

Chief researcher Marianne Williams said migrants have stubbornly refused to adapt to the local culture. "They haven't made an effort to fit in, and in a lot of cases they've tried to impose their own laws onto those already here". One migrant, a chook thief in his native England, immigrated to Australia in 1803 and despite his past career and skill set, was reduced to working as a local politician to make ends meet.

Phelps Released Back Into Ocean

Saying he was 'ready to go home', a group of trainers today released Michael Phelps back into the wild today after more than 15 years in captivity.

Phelps, who was born in the Atlantic Ocean and then moved to a training pool in Baltimore, captured the hearts of the American public, and later the world, performing amazing feats in the pool. But after a dazzling career, trainers said it was now time to return him to his natural environment.

Following an emotional farewell, trainers carried Phelps along the foreshore before lowering him into the water. Phelps swam briefly at the water's edge, then powered off towards the horizon to join his family.

DOCTOR WHO SUSPENDED AS NEW TIMELORD CAN'T PARK TARDIS

A source at the BBC has revealed that filming of the new series of Doctor Who has been SUSPENDED after the new Timelord Jodie Whittaker has been unable to park the Tardis.

According to our contact within the corporation, this is the second incident to stop filming in two days after Whittaker also complained that the interior of the Tardis was 'just awful.' He said: 'We began filming a number of months ago while the identity of the new Doctor was kept a closely guarded secret, but it became clear soon after Jodie arrived that she was having a few problems getting the Tardis parked properly.'

We got our team to add some larger wing mirrors and those sensors that beep as you get close to a stationary object, but she still managed to scrape Davros' 1968 custom restored Ford Cortina – he went apeshit.

News of Whittaker's casting as the thirteenth Timelord led to huge reaction on social media, with some members of the viewing public outraged that the BBC had become 'obsessed with diversity.'

One on-line poster called Daniel Miso-Génisto said: 'It's political correctness gone bloody mad – whatever will they come up with next?'

'I wouldn't be surprised if the next James Bond is black, and I mean proper black like Ghana or something with a funny accent and he or she will probably be gender fluid or transatlantic as well and disabled and bisexual and homosexual and straight and asexual.'

RUMOURS are running rife online following the cliffhanger finale to the last season of Doctor Who, amid suggestions that the next person to play the Doctor might pull the show out of the scrap heap and make it more appealing to people who aren't dorks and that the new Doctor Who may not be just for fucking nerds.

The BBC have confirmed that they have a huge interest in making the show much, much better than it is, claiming that while coasting on name recognition is one thing, it'd be nice if their flagship science-fiction show was up to par with the best sci-if in the world, and not just a hokey Scooby-Doo style monster chase with embarrassing effects and plotting that rarely if ever makes any sense.

We're hoping that the next Doctor won't just resort to gobbledygook to solve their problems, beamed one source close to the production.

We're hoping to furnish Jodie with scripts that don't just descend into nonsense that the Doctor solves by pulling a few levers on the Tardis while talking shite. That way, we can appeal to a bigger audience, and not just the die-hards who refuse to accept that the show is a big load of old bollocks. The source went on to confirm that the SFX team for the new season might actually get a big enough budget to create monsters and effects that don't look like Ceefax. I remember the first ever series way back when and still haven't figured out how the Daleks climbed stairs.

TWO SENIOR STOCKHOLM HASHERS CONFIRMED KNIGHTHOODS IN HONOURS LIST

Sir MaliBog, now known as Sir MaliBog, received the honour for his services to investigative journalism.

Her Majesty, seen here doing a Down Down, has been a loyal reader of the Absolut Trash for more than 50 years, and royal insiders say it is the first newspaper she turns to each month.

Sir MaliBog has been editor and director of the World's leading Hash Trash, which has been a top international online news resource and investigating journalism for more than 70 years, since 1947.

This is indeed a great honour, Sir MaliBog said. It is reward for good quality journalism and a burning desire to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Under his stewardship, the Absolut Trash has gone from strength to strength and is now read by more than 45 million people every month.

While Sir MaliBog receives a knighthood, fellow Stockholm Hash Hero Sir Clrver Dick is also confirmed as a Knight for his services to the arts and dancing.

Sir Clever Dick is a great entertainer earning an absolute fortune from his craft which he kindly donats to local breweries in distress. His showpiece 'Dancing on Tables' has been favourably compared with the best of the
